Choice Poetry.

THE CONCLAVE OF QUACKS.

"Twas the purpose of their meeting,
For which they choose a time as fitting,"
(Butler's "Hudibrast in the Moon.")

When Uncle sam was very sick,
And feared a dissolution,
A lot of quacks together met,
To meet Dirk Constitution.

Extremely "liberal" men were they,
And fond of martial music,
Delighted with the smell of Gore,
Oft drenched with blackjack physic.

Though millions of their patients died,
They kept their positions,
And claimed the other quacks, to be
The Simon Pure physicians!

In Congress Hall, at Weddington,
These quacks took up their station;
And Uncle Sam before them brought
For an examination.

Being very weak from loss of blood,
In an arm chair they placed him—
By old friends scarcely recognized,
So few years had so defaced him.

Poor Sam looked neither black nor white;
To stand he was unable,
But sat and sighed, and gazed upon
The things upon the table.

Gag, barrel, grapeshot, clyster pipe,
Rhubarb, senna, manna,
Magnesia, jalap, calomel,
And lip-ecacuanha;

Epsom salts and castor oil,
Pills, powders, plasters, lotions,
And various kinds of worthless trash
Made in the land of notions.

The quacks around the table sat,
And held a consultation;
Which, being ended, they began
With Sam's examination.

Quack Doctor Sumner felt his pulse,
And said he should endeavor,
By diagnosis clear as mud,
To prove the case Black Fever.

The skin was hot, the lips were dry,
The nerves was badly shaken;
So many cases had he seen,
He could not be mistaken.

There was danger in the case:
But still he felt assured,
If Sam would swallow his black dose,
He quickly would be cured.

He had himself its victims tried,
And knew how it would act;
For once it had healed up his head,
Which Bully Brooks had cracked.

Quack Wilson next examined Sam,
And said he felt surprised
That Doctor Sumner could not see
The man was paralized—

Especially on the Southern side,
Where all obstructions lay;
But his black physic, it put on,
Would cure him right away.

Quack Wilson then resumed his seat:
Then came quack Doctor Thiel,
Looked at Sam's tongue and said the case
To him seemed rather bad.

But felt quite certain Sam would soon
Be free from every ill,
By taking one good dose of his
Black reconstruction pill.

He owned it was a bitter dose,
But had a sugar coat;
And if Sam would not take it,
He should force it down his throat.

But Maryland and Delaware,
And Kentucky as well,
He thought should be compelled to take
The reconstruction pill.

Thad said, to make Sam take the pill,
Might perhaps be thought a crime;
But every State would be compelled
To take the pill in time.

But first it must go down Sam's throat,
By fair means or by foul;
Or every Doctor there would soon
Be kicked out of the hall.

A squad of soldiers then were called,
Who came without delay;
Their bayonets drew, and ordered Sam
To take it right away.

Although he made an ugly face,
He swallowed Thad's black pill;
And poor white trash are taxed and robbed
To pay the doctor's bill.

And now the quacks in Congress Hall,
Together sit and sing:
"Hurrah for Yankee Doodle!
He will swallow anything!!"

Miscellaneous.

DOBBS AND NEGRO EQUALITY.

I AM no novelist, and have never aspired to be, but I claim to besomething of a politician.

If there is a loyal man I believe I am one. I made great sacrifice during the war for my country. I did not go to war because I could not. My private affairs would not permit it. But if one person in the United States of America kept up a more galling fire in the rear than any other one I am the man. I have been the mark of the Copperheads. And besides it has cost me much domestic trouble.

George Washington Harrison Socrates Clay Dobbs, (that's me) unfortunately married one Amy Maria Louisa Scraggs, and as old Scraggs is a Democrat, my Amy has been a follower of the old rebel sympathizing Copperhead Butternut, and at times the climate at "Dobb's Cottage" became somewhat tropical. But I have borne it like a Christian.

Old Scraggs has always been too fast for me in argument, but when he came visiting and I held family prayer and got the old reprobate upon his knees I had all the say, and you better believe I poured grape and canister into Fort Sumter. Amy was a beautiful girl, and I married her because I loved her. Some said I married her for "Dobb's Cottage," but that is a lie. It is true, her father made us a present of the farm and cottage, but what of that? It was his daughter and she had a right to it. I was master of the situation until recently. This suffrage question involved me in a very serious difficulty. I had taken special pains to tantalize Amy about copperheads, butternuts and sympathizers, but when this suffrage question came up she gave me "Hail Columbia" upon the Negro equality question.

I defended the best I could, but found the position was getting untenable, and so I declared straight out for equality and went at it upon general equality principles.

I went my whole length and declared for out-right equality.

Our people had got patriotic and had admitted the negroes into the public schools, and I had the honor of moving first in that patriotic step.

One evening a few weeks ago I came home and Amy and I had a set-to on the equality question.

The children had been at school that day, and each had a negro next to them. I saw Amy was working her wit, the result which was an announcement that if the children had to associate with negroes, I should too.

I regarded the threat an idle boast, and thought no more of it.

A few days after this I notified her that Gen. ——— and his wife would dine with us. Her eyes sparkled. I knew there was mischief brewing, but could not foresee it.

I advised her that the General, his wife and I would be at the cottage at one. And sure enough we were.

And Amy was prepared for us. She had prepared an excellent dinner, and met us at the door to welcome us, announcing at the same time that dinner was ready.

So soon as we prepared she led the way to the dining room, and to my surprise had spread a large table, and had a saucy old negro by the name of Crow, with his wife and two children that were seated next to our children at school, already at the table. She apologized for her haste in seating her first guests, assuming that she had concluded we were not coming, and then proceeded to formally introduce old Crow and and the Crow family generally to the General and his wife as brother Crow, sister, master Crow, and little Miss Crow.

I felt a good deal like crowing some myself. My legs began to show unmistakable signs of elasticity. I felt as if I could heave out any six niggers in the neighborhood. But I fully comprehended the nature of the situation. The General's wife was about to explode. The General, although an earnest Radical, could not suppress his olfactory from becoming slightly elevated. My Amy was extremely polite, and chatted away apparently in one of her happiest moods. Old Crow sat back with his thumbs in the armholes of his dilapidated old vest, whilst his wife, with folded arms, was assuming an air of maiden innocence.

Amy handed the General by the wench, which filled up that side of the table, and hurriedly seated the General's wife by old guns and ivory. Then gathering up the children seated them beside their school fellows, after which she took her seat at the head of the table, and requested me to be seated at the further end to wait upon the guests.

Up to this time I had managed well. But the General's wife arose and remarked that she did not intend to bear the insult further. At this time the General flew into a passion, and accused me of purposely arranging an insult. I protested, and accused Amy, and as I did so old Scraggs stepped in. The General remarked, 'you old butternut, you are at the bottom of this.' My Amy reminded him that that was her house, and no one should insult her father there, and ordered him to leave.

The General called her a dirty lousy for insulting his wife, and at this old Scraggs hit him with the knot end of a butternut limb. I sprang between them to protect my guest, when old Crow placed the General and me on an equality. In the melee the wench assailed the General's wife and the fight became general. Amy in the meantime expostulating and counselling peace.

Finally we had all succeeded in resuming our perpendicular positions, but Crow, who was just then the especial object of a charge from the General.

Amy was playing Pendleton, by leaning over the old carcass, succeeded in causing the General to retreat.

She then placed her arms around him and attempted to raise him. I drew up. Making a charge upon old mankind, I ruined a calf-skin.

Mrs. Crow patted me on the back with a chair, whilst the young Crows set up a regular jubilee.

But I cleaned them out. I did, indeed. The last words I heard from old Crow were, "you're a gemman."

Scraggs enjoyed it. Amy was exceedingly sorry, and could not comprehend what had caused the row. The General and his wife were off in a flurry.

And I—I was the maddest and maliest Radical in the State.

I pursued after the General to apologize and explain, and ran into old Crow. He gave me an exhibition of his "manhood," and seeing I was flanked, I wheeled to retreat. In my haste I encountered the wench and over we went.

I partially recovered and started on all fours, when old Crow came to my assistance, and by an attack upon the rear enabled me to make the fastest time on record.

As I came down the pavement I discovered a waving handkerchief. It was Amy's.

Scraggs had assumed a belligerent position and as I passed him, set Crow to trotting in the opposite direction. He made good time, but nothing in comparison to what I had done.

Since which time I have been dubbed "Dexter" by Amy and her father, and at the last intimation that I intended to vote the Radical ticket, Amy intends upon rehearsing her story of the row between Manhood and Radical.

I have partially succeeded in reconciling the General and his wife, but my suggestion to play the same joke on Scraggs and Amy, at their house brought to the General's mind such a vivid recollection of old Crow's muscular powers, that he concluded that negro equality would answer for electioneering purposes, but was a decidedly dangerous experiment by way of practical jokes. I thought so too.—Ohio Statesman.

A GOOD story is told of Professor Adams, of Amherst. He was very dry and witty, it is said, and the following is too good to pass by:

A student was called upon to describe the peculiar characteristics of the shark. He was a fluent speaker, and answered at some length.

"Incorrect," said the Professor.

Unwilling to acknowledge his ignorance, the student tried again.

"Incorrect."

"Well to tell the truth, Professor, I don't know anything about it.

"Correct."

A LITTLE boy having asked his mother what a 'blood relation' meant, being told it meant near relation, said after a moment's thought, 'Then mother, you must be the bloodiest relation I've got.'

HORRIBLE OCCURRENCE.

Two Children Bitten by a Rattlesnake and a Thief destroyed by the Same Horse.

NEVER in our experience as journalists has it been our duty to chronicle an occurrence more horrid in its detail than the one we are about to relate.

The sad noise that ten a widowed mother childless, and for the time being almost bereft of reason, happened about the 16th ult., in the adjoining county of Alton, a short distance from the Warren country line, and in the vicinity of Anthony's Mill. The heart-rending details, as related to us by persons of unquestionable veracity, are about these: Some two months since Mrs. Blankenship, a lady of respectability, lost her husband from disease, and was left with three children, two interesting boys and a little infant girl just large enough to walk alone and beguile the lonely hours of the mother with its innocent prattle. On the 16th ult., the mother, Mrs. Blankenship, for the purpose of washing clothes, repaired to the spring branch near the house in the locality referred to, taking her three children with her, the house dog following behind. She had been engaged in washing but a short time when the dog was heard barking incessantly on the hill near by. Thinking that the dog had possibly treed a raccoon or had a rabbit at bay, the two little boys proposed going at once to secure the game. With the mother's consent the little fellows started off in high glee. Alas! better had they never been born. On reaching the spot where the dog was barking they saw a short distance from the dog a large object coiled at the foot of a stump, in a hostile attitude, keeping the dog at bay. They looked but a moment, eager only to capture the supposed game, and not thinking of danger, nor knowing the nature of the prey, they approached the hideous monster that in fatality of attack "outvenomes all the worms of Nile." The oldest of the two boys approached first, with his little hands outstretched and his face aglow at the prospect of his prize, he said, "I'll get him, brother," ere she could more and he received a death more terrible and speedy than were the horrors of fabled Lucasian. With one dart of his forked tongue, with one deathrattle of his tail, the huge rattlesnake—for it was nothing less—drew back his scaly folds, and with one dart forward planted his envenomed fangs in the flesh of the boy, and left the deadly poison coursing hot through his young veins. Again and again was the boy bitten by the fatal reptile till he lay exhausted in the coils of the monster.

The other little fellow rushed forward to the relief of his little brother, and he also received the double fangs of the serpent in several places. The screams of the boys alarmed the mother, who was still wending at the branch, and leaving her baby girl she ran frantically to the spot. What a sight there met her gaze! Purple with poison, swollen and black, and bitten in many places, one of her boys was already dead and the other dying from the same cause. The snake had crawled away, and the dying boy lived just long enough to tell the circumstances of their death. Overwhelmed with an intensity of agony which mothers alone can feel, she reclined at the fatal spot a short time, when she beheld at her feet her little girl at the branch and hurried back.

On reaching the spot, horrible as it may seem, she found that the little girl had walked to the washtub, into which she had fallen head foremost and was drowned, "and it too was gone." The mother's cup of misery was full; not another drop could be added. Bereft of children, and almost of reason, she sank under the accumulated horrors of the hour. Assistance was procured, the heart-crushed woman and the remains of her meetings were taken charge of and cared for. A short time after a large rattlesnake with thirteen rattles was killed near the spot where the boys were bitten.

The event created a profound sensation in the community, and has scarcely a parallel even in the exciting annals of our early and hardy pioneers.—Bunker Hill Gazette (Ky.) Democrat.

PAYING A PROMISSORY NOTE.

THERE was two early settlers in the western part of Pennsylvania whose names were Peter Schmidt and John Sparks. Peter had borrowed the sum of $5 from Sparks, and to his dismay found at last settling day, he had about one hundred dollars to pay or lie in new applellum. He called on his neighbor John to borrow the amount, but unfortunately at once, and got as late, neither he nor his family could be induced to lend him a cent. Peter was in an old quandary, and scratched all the deer-ears number on dollar and then the cents all seem to be large further figgs of other and in many pleas of tobacco.

After smoking over the matter awhile, it occurred to Peter that in a similar transaction he had seen or heard something like a note passing between the borrower and the lender, and he suggested as much to John. The lender assented to the propriety of such a course. Paper pen and ink were produced, and between the two a document was concocted, stating that John and Lent $5, which Peter would repay to John in "three months." This Peter signed, and thus for the two financiers made the thing "all regular and shine-shape."

But at this point a difficulty presented itself. They both knew that notes were drawn in the operation of borrowing and lending, which they had witnessed, but neither of them had observed what disposition was made of the documents—whether or them could tell whether it was for the borrower or the lender to take charge of the paper.

Here was a dilemma. At last a bright thought struck John.

"You have de money to pay, Peter; you take de paper, or you run see as you have to pay it."

This was conclusive; the common sense of the thing was plain, and Peter pocketed his money and his note "so he could see that he had to pay it."

Three months passed away, and to the day appeared Peter, and paid over the promised sum to John. This being done the pugs and pipes were again brought out. After puffing awhile, Peter produced the note and handed it to John with the remark—

"Now, John, you must take the note as you can see that the money had been paid."

A YANKEE IN A COAL SCREEN.

IN order to load coal boats on the Lehigh Canal a shoot has been built of the plank of about one hundred and fifty feet in length is made at the chute which runs from a stationhouse on the side of the mountain to a large circular revolving screen; to the leaded car, attached to a rope which draws upon empty car, and arriving at the screen, the lower end of the car is suddenly unbolted, and the coal is shot with great velocity into a hopper; this conveys it directly into a screen, which has three long chambers, through which coal of so many sizes is riddled out, and shot, by scrapers into just as many boats, waiting for different descriptions of the article.

A few weeks since a Yankee of the genuine breed, quite inquisitive but more verbant than a Yankee should be, gained the station house and raced with wonder at the contrivances. He particularly admired the swiftness with which the loaded car descended and emptied its load, and the velocity with which it returned to give place to another.

Shortly his attention was attracted by seeing a laborer mount one of the full cars about to make the descent.

"Going to ride?" inquired he.

"Yes—going to shute; won't you go?"

"Waal, I guess I'll step a bit and see you do it."

The car swiftly descended, and ere it reached the hopper the laborer jumped off safely.

"Do you do that often?" inquired he of one of the laborers in the shed.

"Oh, yes," continued the man with a wearish answer; "you know all of the boatmen are single men, and as they often have orders for family coal, we always send down a married man with every car of that kind to let them know."

"Well, now, do tell," uttered the Eastern man.

The more the Yankee looked at the apparatus the more did he become convinced that it would be a great thing to go down the steep in that way—something that he could tell to him.

Plucking up courage he approached the superintendent.

"Guess 'tis a slidding down hill, don't it? You could'nt hire a fellar down, could you?"

"Oh, yes, I'm reckoned considerable of a jumper. I once jumped off a hay-mow thirty feet high, and it made me so supple that I'm give in to be the best dancer in the whole township."

"Well, get on and ride, some of your-self."

Accidently the car moved on, and our friend found the speed so fearful and the dexterity exercised in his case forced to scrape down and grasp the side of the vehicle for support. The place where the laborer leaped on was reached, but the Yankee was not in a position to jump; he had to hold on, and running down a decent three times as steep as that which he had come, with a sudden click out shot the bolt, and with a violent force out went the coal, the Yankee included, into the hopper.

"Murder! get me out! stop the concern!" shouted our hero as he felt himself sliding down the hopper into the cylinder. "Murder! stop the concern—I'll be killed!" But the motive of "the concern" was water, which has no sympathy with those who pursue knowledge under difficulties, and those who saw him were too distant and too much convulsed with laughter to render any assistance into the screen he slid, sinking to the top; and as he felt himself revolving with the coal he grasped the wires in desperation to prevent himself from being rolled to the bottom. Around the wheel he went, and our friend's sensibilities were touched up by a pitiful shower of the coal dust riddled through from all the chambers.

He managed to get one eye opened, and saw with delight that the cylinder was only about ten feet in length, and he forced his way forward with desperation, but it was not after many successful smashes over most of the wheel had yet to be learned and the next time he reached the bottom he was shot out of the scrapper into the boat beneath. To the screams of laughter with which his nakedness was hailed, any hero said not a word, but gruffly put an old handkerchief before the dust out of his eyes, and surveying his form exposed and denuded, lacerated, scratched and cut flinty, he remarked to none in particular, "Darned if my record, by Gunnies!"

A TRAVELLER recently, in Bering's Meadow, Virginia, had a drama which never leaves the stage of the island, and the extent of his knowledge is bounded by the confines of his house. He once took a war between the North and South, and he had never heard the din of battle nor seen any soldiers he considered it a hoax. He is utterly unable to read, and is ignorant to the last degree. A good story I told of his first and only day at school. He was quite a lad when a lady came to the district where his father lived to teach school. He was sent, and on the teacher was classifying the school, he was called upon in turn and interrogated as to his studies. Of course he had to say he had never been to school, and knew none of his letters. The schoolmaster gave him a seat on one side until she had finished the preliminary examination of the rest of the scholars, she then called him to her and drew on the blackboard the letter A, and told him what it was, and asked him to remember how it looked. He looked at it a moment, and then inquired:

The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY MORNING, OCT. 25, 1867.

☞ THE COLUMBIAN has the Largest Circulation in Columbia and adjoining counties of any paper published here, and is also a much larger sheet than any of its cotemporaries; and is therefore the best medium for advertising in this section of the State.

THE RESULT REVIEWED.

On looking over the official returns of the election, we notice the fact that Dauphin and Perry are the only Radical counties that can claim the bad eminence of having increased their majority, as compared to the election of last year.

The Radicals sustained their heaviest losses in Philadelphia, and in the counties of Allegheny, Bradford, Crawford, Chester, Delaware, Erie, Indiana, Lawrence, Lebanon, Tioga, Venango, Union and Warren.

Philadelphia city, always very radical, and the counties of Franklin, Jefferson and Forest, usually voting that way by a small majority, were by this election carried over into the Democratic column.

We lost heavily in Luzerne and Schuylkill, as compared to the vote of last year, owing to the character of the population, being mining districts, and we are sorry to notice a falling off in our majority in the counties of Berks, Wayne, Greene, Monroe, Elk, Pike, Sullivan, Fayette, Juniata, Northumberland, Northampton, Montour and York. There must be a great want of organization, energy and zeal among Democrats in these counties to produce such a result at such a time. The loss in berks was 372!

The Democratic counties that increased their majority over and above that given for Clymer, are Adams, Bedford, Bucks, Cambria, Cumberland, Columbia, Carbon, Centre, Clarion, Clinton, Clearfield, Fulton, Lehigh, Lycoming, Mifflin, Montgomery, Westmoreland and Wyoming. It is right to say here that Cambria, Westmoreland and Cumberland, did the best of any of the counties in this respect.

There are 66 counties in the State, including Philadelphia, and 37 gave majorities for Sharswood, and 29 for Williams.—33 of the counties usually go Democratic, and of these only 18 increased their majority over that of last year when we lost the State by 17,178!

Our success is due to a change in public sentiment as shown in the failure of the Radical counties to give their usual heavy majorities, and especially to the glorious political revolution in the city of Philadelphia.

THE following facts relative to the coming trial of Jefferson Davis are from the best authority: The trial is set down for the fourth Monday in November, and as the Government will not interfere there will be no postponement by the counsel on either side. The offence of levying war against the United States will be testified to by Judge Searborough, of Norfolk, Hon. John Goode, Member Confederate Congress, and Capt. Hendren, who were compelled to appear before the Norfolk Grand Jury, and testify to the facts upon which the indictment was made. There will be very few, if any, witnesses for the defence, the fact of levying war being admitted. The prosecution will then proceed with the legal argument—that the prisoner is guilty of treason, and the counsel for defence will argue that, he being a citizen of the State and under its laws, a prior allegance was due to it, not to the United States. It has been positively asserted that Judge Chase would preside; but as the Supreme Court commences its session on the first Monday in December, this is not possible. The trial is expected to last several weeks.

Now is the time to circulate sound Democratic literature. Every man who can read, or who has a family should take his county paper, and after reading it, hand it over to his Republican neighbor. It is a notorious fact that an unusual effort is being made to induce Democrats to subscribe for Radical sheets in the hope that their poisonous teachings may be instilled in Democratic hearts. Especially is this the case where there are Democrats who think themselves too poor to subscribe, and some rich Radical then sends it gratuitously for a year or two. Let the men in each township organize and raise a fund sufficient to supply not only poor Democrats with sound news-papers but such conservative Republicans as may be disposed to act with us. The cost will be but a trifle, and the effect will be much greater than fifty speeches, because the paper will be read at leisure, when there is no excitement, and when facts and arguments can have their greatest weight. THE COLUMBIAN for its size, is the cheapest paper in the State, and we believe it has been and will continue to be one of the best electioneering documents ever sent out.

THE importance of making good nominations was well illustrated in the recent election in the State, and in the city of Philadelphia.

Any other man than Judge Sharswood would have been defeated by not less than five thousand votes, and that was why his friends urged his nomination at Harrisburg.

The nominations in Philadelphia, of candidates for Sheriff, Register of Wills etc., were also made with a view to election, and not merely to be voted for. In short, there was in these nominations a recognition of the fact that the Democratic party are anxious to receive support from conservative men, and will not repel them by objectionable candidates.

QUEER.—How a little bit of election news opens people's eyes. On the day after the Pennsylvania and Ohio elections, the New York Times (Republican) had the following paragraph, which we commend to the Radicals.

We think the New Orleans' Board of School Directors have done perfectly right in providing seperate school rooms and teachers for the education of colored children. We do not see what good would be effected by compelling the whites to associate with the blacks, against the will of either of the parties. It would not tend to the bringing about of amicable feeling, nor would it secure that social fraternization which some people believe so desirable. We rather think that compulsory association would be injurious to both races, and that from it would arise, in the end, greater exclusiveness on the part of the whites.

SENATOR BUCKALEW'S speech, delivered recently at Williamsport, Pa., is perhaps as calm and comprehensive a review of the political situation as any that have been pronounced since the fall canvass in the different States began. It will be of great effect throughout Pennsylvania, to whose citizens it was more especially addressed; but its perusal will do much everywhere in aid of that returning sentiment in favor of real peace and true equality among the several states of the Union. When we peruse such statesman-like efforts, we cannot suppress the wish that we had more men in public life to make such speeches, in place of the bald and jejuns, the thoroughly wearying and weakening efforts that characterize the new school of speakers which came in, and will go out, with the dominant party. It is time the people had plain and exact truths in politics presented to them; and they will find in this speech of Mr. Buckalew matter for as serious reflection as ever engrossed their minds. We should all plunge about in a state of confusion, in these times of a revolutionary tendency, did not clear-sighted men, gifted with expression, and of ardent patriotism, come forward from time to time to state the cause as it stands, to analyze its real character, to refer it conscientiously to the organic law, and to make political appeals to the people for the proper application of their judgment. We wish that Senator Buckalew's speech could be placed in the hands of every citizens of every State.—Boston Post.

SOLDIERS! Who got up the Fishing Creek Confederacy and shot down government officers while endeavoring to enforce the draft in Columbia County? The draft was absolutely necessary in order to sustain you and your brave comrades in the field. It was necessary to save the life of the nation. And yet nearly a regiment of troops were detached from our army in order to put down these Columbia Democrats! Democrats! God save the mark, there would be about as much propriety in calling the devil an angel. And yet to-day these fellows are ring-leaders in the the ranks of our opponents—they make them presidents of their conventions, and nominate them for the best county offices! Soldiers who fought honorably in the the army of the Republic recognize them as men, vote with them and for them. Aye, vote for men who voted against their exercising the right of suffrage whilst fighting the battles of the Republic—vote for men who called them "Lincoln hirelings"—"Hellhounds" of the North, sent down South by an "Illinois Ape" to "steal the spoons" and burn the houses of our "Southern brethren." Can you thus dishonor the graves of your brave comrades whose bones now lie bleaching on the battle-fields of the South? If not, vote for Judge Williams and with the party that sustained you, and sustained the government during the rebellion. You will not find a rebel sympathizers in our ranks!—Miltonian.

For the amusement of our readers we give the above entire. Evidently, the ghost of the Fishing Creek Confederacy still haunts our mild cotemporary. It is unfortunate, too, that he and his friends cannot have another regiment to guard the polls in this county, as they did three years ago. That is why that regiment was sent here, and as soon as they performed their duty, their master ordered their return. Not a single man whom they arrested was ever tried or found guilty of any crime.

DEATH OF A PROMINENT PHISICIAN. Dr. Charles Bower, who is well known to most of our citizens as one of the best physicians in this part of the State, died in Harrisburgh last week. He had been very ill for some time, but was improving in condition, when he suddenly took a relapse and sank gradually until the time of his death. Dr. Bower leaves a family and a large circle of intimate friends to mourn his loss. He was Surgeon of the 6th Pa. Reserves during the term of service of that Regiment, and consequently is well known to many of our soldier boys. He was universally beloved by the men who will hear of his loss with regret.

BOOK NOTICES.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS.—This popular Magazine for Boys and Girls presents a very attractive table of contents for November. Doctor Hayes furnishes an exciting new chapter of "Cast Away in the Cold;" Mr. Dioz gives two more capital "Letters from William Henry to his Grandmother;" Gail Hamilton writes of "James Again." These and other excellent stories and poems, all profusely illustrated, make this number of "Our Young Folks', one of the best ever issued.

The Publisher present an imposing array of attractions to readers of "Our Young Folks" for 1868. Charles Dickens has written expressly for this Magazine, "A Ho iday Romance," which will appear in early numbers, with illustrations by the greatest of English designers, John Gilbert. The Author of "John Halifax" will contribute several articles in prose and verses. Dr. Hayes will finish his capital story, "Cast Away in the Cold." Mrs. Stowe will continue to write sketches like those which have made her so popular with the readers of "Our Young Folks," Mr. J. H. A. Bone will furnish six historical articles on very interesting subjects, which will be illustrated with historical accuracy. The Author of "The Seven Little Sisters," one of the most charming of children's books, will tell "Dame Nature's Stories," explaining many curious facts of animal and vegetable life. And host of other good writers will help make "Our Young Folks" constantly attractive and useful. As the Publisher says: "It will be seen that Our Young Folks for 1867 has something for its patrons in every juvenile department; Romance, History Fiction, Fact, Poetry, Prose, Fancy, Science, Music, Art, and Amusement, and it must continue to be, as it now is, A Household Necessity and Delight." It is only $2.00 a year. Clubs get it at reduced rates, and Premiums are offered for new Subscribers Send to Ticknor & Fields. Boston.

THE DIAMOND DICKENS.—The Old Curiosity Shop, and Reprinted Pieces.—The beauty, concise form, and all the other attractions of this exquisite edition add new delights to one of Dickens' best stories. Eytinge's portraits of favorite characters give fresh interest to Little Nell, Mrs. Jarley, Dick Swiveller, Quilp, Sampson Brass, The Marchioness, etc., and will tend to increase the number of their admirers. The "Reprinted Pieces" are some of the choicest papers ever contributed to English periodicals, many of them having already won wide favor in this country. The convenience and clear type of the "Diamond Dickens," we are glad to know, are duly appreciated.—Chicago Journal.

This is the Seventh number of this issue. The remaining six or seven volumes will be published in rapid succession. The set, consisting of 13 or 14 elegant little volumes, will be a choice library in itself. Besides being so very attractive, it is really the cheapest edition of Dicken's Complete Works issued in this country. The illustrated edition is only $1.50 a volume; plain, $1.25. All the booksellers have it, or it will be sent postpaid by the Publishers, Ticknor and Fields, Boston.

ROBERTS BROTHERS, No. 143 Washington Street, Boston, have sent us a very queer book, entitled "Curious Myths of the Middle Ages;" wherein the author discourses about, and disposes of many old stories and legends. It treats of the Wandering Jew; Prester John; The Divining Rod; The Seven Sleepers of Ephesus; William Tell; The Dog Gellert; Tailed Men; Antichrist and Pope Joan; The Man in the Moon; The Mountain of Venus; Fatality of Numbers; The Terrestrial Paradiso; bringing together many quaint and fanciful legends, exposing the fallacy of some popular beliefs, and suggesting topics of thought and investigation as to various psychological problems."

OBITUARY RESOLUTIONS.

At a meeting of St. Mathews E. L. S. S. of Catawissa, Columbia County, Pa., held Oct. 20th, 1867, the following Preamble and Resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, God in his Allwise, though to us mysterious, Providence has seen fit to remove suddenly from our midst, by the hand of death, Miss Kate Eyer, our much beloved and highly esteemed fellow laborer in the Sunday School, therefore—

Resolved, That as a school we bear testimony to her fidelity in the work of instructing the young, and will ever cherish in our hearts her many praiseworthy virtues, and though she will be absent from us yet by us she will not be forgotten.

Resolved, That while we, as a school, mourn her loss, we have the consoling hope, based upon her conduct, and consolation, that our loss is her eternal gain.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with the family of the deceased in this their hour of sad bereavement, and commend them for comfort and consolation to our kind Heavenly Father who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That a copy of the above Preamble and Resolutions be sent by the Secretary to the family of the deceased, and also copies to the Church and County papers for publication.

M. M. BROBST, Sec'y.

THE Columbia County Temperance Union will hold its next meeting in Catawissa, on Thursday evening the 31st inst., according to a resolution passed at its last meeting in Bloomsburg on the 12th ult.

O. C. KAHLER, Secretary.

Some Folks Can't Sleep Nights.

VERY many suffer from general debility, others from weakness of the stomach and inability to digest their food; some have creeping sensations along the nerve fibres, or pain in the back, with aching and weary feeling in the limbs. Thousands of ladies suffer through long years from what are called FEMALE COMPLAINTS, caused by the feebleness of muscle and nerve, or that attend deficiency of vital force. Thousands of business men, overworked in mind and body, use up the nervous fluid and become unfit for duty or the enjoyments of life. Excess in youth, and the terrible effects of fever and ague, involve shattered constitutions and the failure of the general health as of health. To sufferers from all these causes,

DODD'S NERVINE AND INVIGORATOR

offers an invaluable boon—a natural and efficient recovery of lost powers. No person, man or woman, suffering from any cause, can afford to neglect this remedy. The Nervine will be found to possess an equalizing and nutritive principle. It has affinity for the nervous Fibres, and supplies them with the nutritive that is constantly required. Like wholesome food taken into the stomach, it undergoes rapid digestion, invigorating in its process the whole nervous organism, and imparts a unknown to any other preparation. It contains no opium or hasheesh, and so far from producing costiveness it will be found an efficient cure for consumption, and has obtained a wide renown for this peculiarity.

CALMNESS AND TRANQUILITY

WHAT PEOPLE SAY.

"Dear Doctor: The last medicine prescribed for you I obtained, and will say that Dodd's Nervine and Invigorator is all that it claims to be. I feel like a new man; I sleep well; have good appetite; and feel stronger than I have for many years past." (Gentleman) Signed by Dr. H. A. Tucker, 259 Clinton st., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"I have used the Nervine, and find myself much benefited by it, particularly in the increase of strength and cure of those trembling sensations. My costiveness also seems to be entirely cured." (Letter to Dr. Tucker.

"The medicine you ordered (Dodd's Nervine) we have taken three bottles of, and is a grand thing. My wife says she had rather have one bottle of it than forty doctors. She is certainly better. Leucorrhœa cured; don't feel the dragging down so much; bowels move easier, and is a better nervous condition every way."

G. B. Martin, Cashier Glen House, Long Branch, N. J., states that Dodd's Nervine has cured him of chronic weakness of the stomach, dizziness and sick headache, and greatly strengthened his whole system.

David Hartshorn, 399 State-st., Brooklyn, cured of chronic muscular and nervous debility.

John Harbut, Brooklyn, N. Y. says: "It regulate the bowels and by passing entirely off the feet, quiet the nerves, and tone up the system. I have never used anything that equalled Dodd's Nervine."

W. F. Deans, Esq., Eastford, Conn.: "My wife has suffered for seventeen years with extreme nervous debility and mental prostration. She was induced by a friend in Dr. J. Dodd's Nervine and invent gator, and by its use is now restored to perfect health."

Dr. G. C. Kirk, Charlestown, Mass.: "In cases of great nervous debility, not confined by any means to the female organization more common with that sex, I always have confidence in Dodd's Invigorator with the happiest effect. It exceeds in tonic power anything that I know, while its action upon the bowels is all that can be desired."

Dodd's Nervine and Invigorator is employed in the Massachusetts Hospital for the Insane at Taunton.

The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, FRIDAY, OCT. 25, 1867.

THE Radicals of Orange township made an attempt to vote a negro at the late election.

ANY unusual excellence in last week's COLUMBIAN may be attributed to the fact that its editors were absent in Sullivan county, hunting.

SENATOR BUCKALEW went to Washington on last Tuesday morning to attend a meeting of the Committee on Retrenchment, of which he is a member.

THE "water-squirter" which for months has kept down the dust in our main street, has suspended operations, and in consequence we are overwhelmed with dust.

WE have been informed that the saw mill and powder keg factory of the Messrs. M nroe, at Rupert, was completely destroyed by fire on last Thursday a week. We have not learned the particulars.

A GREAT change has been made in the appearance of the Court House yard by the removal of some of the largest trees in it. That they were too numerous cannot be denied, but it remains to be seen whether the hand of reform has not gone too far.

MANY of our subscribers, when remitting us money, ask for a receipt by mail. In order to avoid this we publish monthly the receipts for subscriptions and job work, and no further receipt is needed. If any name should by mistake be omitted, the party interested should at once notify us.

ONE of our radical friends in Scott township, a few years ago proposed to bottle up a Democrat, and preserve him as a curiosity. Judging by the vote in Scott, we think our friend must have unbottled his specimen one day too soon. The Democratic majority in Scott is ONE.

A CORRESPONDENT wishes to know why our Radical friends have not started for Salt River. The reason, we suspect, is because the Connecticut and California Radicals have been there for some time, and judging from their well known thieving propensities, we think they have stolen the River!

WE are regularly in receipt of Germantown Telegraph. As an agricultural and family newspaper it has no superior in the country. It is a large, handsome sheet, well printed, and edited with much ability by Maj. Philip R. Freas. See advertisment. Address Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa.

WE have been shown a patent for improved mill gearing, taken out by our friend Samuel Shive, of Fishingercek. The patent is plain, practical, and shows much mechanical genius. By it mills can be run on small streams of water, at a small expense, and the wheel can be raised or depressed to suit the volume of water. A model can be seen at Simon C. Shive's establishment, in this town.

So many townships did well at the late election, that it would prove tedious to mention them all, yet due credit must be given little Jackson for the magnificent vote there. She well deserves the name of the "Banner township," and long may she retain the honor. Although it was a good "buckwheat day," her citizens did their whole duty, and proved themselves worthy of bearing the name of "Old Hickory."

A. F. YOST, late editor of the Wyoming Republican, has retired from the concern in disgust, and in a caustic valedictory gives his radical readers "hot shot" for failing to appreciate his (and his late partner's) efforts to enlighten them. Yost deserved a better fate, but they don't seem to appreciate Columbia county men, and hence both Bargess and Yost came to grief. Can't the Republican send there another candidate for newspaper honors?

JUDGE WOODWARD has returned from Europe, but scarcely had he landed upon our shores, when the news reached him of the death of his son William, at Wilkes-Barre. This affliction prevented for a time the grand reception which had been planned for him by the citizens of Luzerne. He will prove an able legislator in Congress, and undoubtedly will take the foremost rank among the defenders of the Constitution.

A CERTAIN Post Master in the upper end of the county, in his eagerness to introduce reforms, has, we think, overstepped the requirements of duty in charging postage upon papers mailed and delivered within the county to persons whose domicil may be out of it. It is not his business to hunt up the actual residence of a subscriber, nor does a proper construction of the law warrant it. A Post Master in his zeal may not only make himself obnoxious to the people, but may perform acts making him amenable to the Department.

THE official returns from the several counties are sent to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and by him opened and read in the Hall of the House of Representatives in the presence of the Governor and such of the citizens as may see proper to attend, on Tuesday, November 5. The result being ascertained, the Governor issues his proclamation declaring who has been elected, and soon after gives him his commission as Judge of the Supreme Court for a term of fifteen years from and after the first Monday of December next.

WHILE our county has done nobly, going even beyond our most sanguine expectations, all of us know that had our men turned out fully, our majority would have reached two thousand. We cannot understand why our friends should fail to vote when such important issues are at stake. The victory we have achieved is by so small a majority that if only one more voter had staid at home in each election district in the State, Sharswood would have been defeated, and a Radical judge placed on the Supreme Bench for fifteen years. Notwithstanding this, in some townships over twenty Democrats never went near the polls. Certainly he is a cold patriot who cannot give one day to his country—when so much is at stake.

Tennessee,	New Jersey	Missouri,

Michigan,	North Carolina,	Wisconsin,

AT THE FAIRS OF THE

American Institute, Franklin Institute, Maryland Institute, Mass. Mechanics' Association, Penn. Mechanics' Institute, St. Louis Agricultural and Mechanics' Association,

And at numerous Institute and County Fairs including all the Fairs at which they were exhibited the past three years. First Prizes have also been awarded these Machines at the exhibitions of

LONDON, PARIS, DUBLIN, LINZ,

Rouen, Beyonne, St. Etster, Chalons, and they have been furnished, by special command, to the Empress of France, Empress of Austria, Empress of Russia, Empress of Brazil, Queen of Spain, and Queen of Bavaria.

THE GROVER & BAKER
ELASTIC-STICH
SEWING MACHINES

are superior to all others for the following reasons:—

1. They sew with two threads direct from the spools, and requiring no rewinding.

2. They are more easily understood and used, and less liable to derangement than other machines.

3. They are capable of executing perfectly, without change of adjustment, a much greater variety of work than other machines.

4. The stitch made by these machines is much more firm, elastic, and durable, especially upon articles which require to be washed and ironed, than any other stitch.

5. This stitch, owing to the manner in which the under thread is inwrought, is much the most plump and beautiful in use, and retains this plumpness and beauty even upon articles frequently washed and ironed until they are worn out.

6. The structure of the seam is such that, though it be cut or broken at intervals of only a few stitches, it will neither open, run, nor ravel, but remain firm and durable.

7. Unlike other machines, these fasten both ends of the seam by their own operation.

8. With these machines, white silk is used upon the right or face side of the seam, cotton may be used upon the other side without lessening the strength or durability of the seam. This can be done on no other machine, and is a great saving upon all articles stitched or made up with silk.

9. These machines, in addition to their superior merits as instruments for sewing, by a change of adjustment, easily learned and practiced, execute the most beautiful and permanent embroidery and ornamental work.

In addition to their finally machines they have also the

IMPROVED DOUBLE LOCK STITCH MACHINES,

making a stitch alike on both sides. This Company make both the Lock and Double stitch Machines, so that persons having a preference can select such as they like best, and if not suited can exchange for the other, thus giving the public the advantage of this arrangement. They also make the newly invented

NO. 1 LOCK STITCH MACHINES

an advance upon all machines heretofore known for sewing with the Lock-Stitch. It is of great power and strength, especially adapted for tailors, dressmakers, harness-makers, carriage-trimmers, and for all descriptions of work to which the lock-stitch is applicable. It works with equal facility silk, cotton, or linen thread, and will sew the finest muslin as well as the thickest leather. Price $60; with Hemmers, $65. Their No. 0 is containing many improvements, adapted for tailoring, vest-making, light shoemaking, as well as for family sewing. Large numbers of these machines are in use, and they give universal satisfaction. None who have seen this machine will willingly use the noisy and cumbrous lock-stitch machines heretofore in general use. Price $50; with Hemmers, $55.

These machines of every description can be had at the agent's office in Bloomsburg, at positively the manufacturer's prices, to which the attention of the public is especially invited.
